it shows how more practitioners can apply such methods to improve the quality of care as well as the treatments and services which they offer their patients and clients the examples drawn from clinical settings community practice and work in the voluntary sector demonstrate the kind of evaluation that can be undertaken by a small scale team or a single practitioner with limited resources the evaluation handbook will be a useful source of reference for those new to evaluation as well as more experienced managers and researchers Health Training in Schools 1928 in nazi germany the cult of celebrity was the embodiment of hitler s style of cultural governance hitler s rise to power owed much to the creation of his own celebrity and the country s greatest stars whether they were actors writers or musicians could be one of only two things if they were compliant they were lauded and awarded status symbols for the regime but if they resisted or were simply jewish they were traitors to be interned and murdered this fascinating analysis offers a shocking portrait of a hitler shaped by aspirations to hollywood style fame of the correlation between art and ambition of films used as weapons and of sexual predilections the fuhrer believed he was an artist not a politician and in his germany s politics and culture became one his celebrity was cultivated and nurtured by joseph goebbels germany s supreme head of culture hitler and goebbels enjoyed the company of beautiful female film stars and goebbels had his own casting couch in germany s version of hollywood there were scandals starlets secret agents premieres and party politics the third reich would launch filmmaker and actress leni riefenstahl to prominence by making her its own glorifying documentarian most famously in the triumph of the will the innovative propaganda film starring hitler and widely considered to be one of the greatest movies ever made it is no coincidence that eva braun hitler s longtime partner and wife for the two days leading up to their joint suicide was a photographer and in fact shot of the fuhrer hitler s innovation and the best available evidence to support the recommendations appropriate collection and management of experts declared conflict of interest expert group composition including content experts methodologists target users policy makers with gender and geographical balance instructions for the management of group process to achieve consensus among experts standards for a transparent decision making process taking into consideration potential harms and benefits end users values and preferences developing plans for implementing and adapting guidelines and minimum standards for reporting publisher description Community Nutrition 2009 one health addresses health challenges arising from the intertwined spheres of humans, animals, and ecosystems. This handbook is the product of an interdisciplinary effort to provide scientific guidance for the evaluation of one health and other integrated approaches to health care. It guides the reader through a systems approach and framework to evaluate such approaches in a standardized way. It provides an overview of concepts and metrics from health and life sciences, social sciences, economics, and ecology that are relevant for the evaluation of the processes involved as well as the characterisation of expected and unexpected outcomes of one health initiatives. Finally, the handbook provides guidance and practical protocols to help plan and implement evaluations in order to generate new insights and provide meaningful information about the value of one health the handbook is intended for practitioners, researchers, evaluators, as well as funders of integrated approaches to health and beyond.

Child Health in the Tropics 1966 How can dedicated health care ethics committees increase their effectiveness and demonstrate their value as essential moral resources for their organizations among the most effective and increasingly valued resources in the health care decision-making process is the institutional ethics committee. The joint commission (JCo) accredits and certifies more than 19,000 health care organizations in the United States including hospitals, nursing homes, and home care agencies. As a condition of accreditation, JCo requires health care organizations to have available a standing multidisciplinary ethics committee composed of physicians, nurses, attorneys, ethicists, administrators, and interested lay citizens. Many of these committees are well meaning but may lack the information, experience, and formal background in bioethics needed to effectively address the range and complexity of the ethical issues that arise in clinical and organizational settings. This handbook for health care ethics committees was conceived in 2007 to address the myriad responsibilities assumed by ethics committees using sample cases and accessible language. Linda Farber Post and Jeffrey Blustein explored applied bioethics, including informed consent and refusal decision making and decisional capacity. Truth telling at the beginning and end of life, palliation, justice in and access to health care services, and organizational ethics in the third edition. This book and Blustein have thoroughly updated and enlarged the content and expanded the scope of the material with special attention to changes in the health care landscape since the second edition was published in 2015. They also focus on communication between and among patients, care providers, and families. Challenges of professionalism essentially refer to the essential role that ethics committees can and should play and how their effectiveness and value can be assessed. An entirely new chapter examines research ethics, and the book also addresses the challenging ethical issues raised by the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. This guide remains an essential resource for all health care ethics committees, and their members.
