This issue brings together a collection of papers that provide economic insights into the modern energy market which is still dominated by crude oil but has expanded to incorporate new energy sources in the form of coal, natural gas, and a mixture of renewable energy sources given the differences in the dynamics at play with different energy sources particularly in relation to price determination the impact they have on the environment their importance in the energy mix and energy policy and so forth. It has become imperative to check their behavior using economic models. Papers 1-3 provide some perspective on oil price determination by focusing on the time varying nature of supply shocks linked to oil producers, paper 1 OPEC's announcements 2 and the heterogeneous interconnections of supply or demand shocks over time horizons and different countries. Papers 4-6 compare different energy sources within the energy market and other markets, 4 explore the importance of energy storage in the electricity market, 5 and examine the dynamic relationship between prices of substitutes oil price on the natural gas market in China, 6 the final four studies examine the impact of renewable and non-renewable energy on the macroeconomy.

volume brings together those papers of mine which may be of interest not only to various specialists but also to philosophers. Many of my writings in mathematics were motivated by epistemological considerations. Some papers originated in the critique of certain views that at one time dominated the discussions of the Vienna Circle. Others grew out of problems in teaching fundamental ideas of mathematics. Still others were occasioned by personal relations with economists. Hence, a wide range of subjects will be discussed: epistemology, logic, basic concepts of pure and applied mathematics, philosophical ideas resulting from geometric studies, mathematical didactics, and finally economics. The papers also span a period of more than fifty years. What unifies the various parts of the book is the spirit of searching for the clarification of basic concepts and methods and of articulating hidden ideas and tacit procedures.

Part 1 includes papers published about 1930 which expound an idea that Carnap, after a short period of opposition in the Circle, fully adopted and under the name principle of tolerance, he eloquently formulated it in great generality in his book Logica Syntax of Language, 1934, through which it was widely disseminated. The new logic in Chapter 1 furthermore includes the first report, 1932, to a larger public of Gödel's epochal discovery, presented among the great logic results of all time. Chapter 2 is a translation of an often-quoted 1930 paper presenting a detailed exposition and critique of intuitionism. this paper provides deeper insights on a few themes with regard to the experience with macroeconomic management in resource rich developing countries (RRDCs). First, some stylized facts on the performance of these economies relative to their non-resource peers are provided. Second, the experience of fund engagement in these economies with respect to surveillance programs and technical assistance is assessed. Third, the experience of selected countries with good practices in the management of the natural resource wealth is presented. Fourth, the experience of IMF advice in helping RRDCs set up resource funds is discussed. Finally, the main themes and messages from the IMF staff consultation with external stakeholders (CSOs, policy makers, academics) are presented.

this volume brings together those papers of mine which may be of interest not only to various specialists but also to philosophers many of my writings in mathematics were motivated by epistemological considerations some papers originated in the critique of certain views that at one time dominated the discussions of the vienna circle others grew out of problems in teaching fundamental ideas of mathematics sti ii others were occasioned by personal relations with economists hence a wide range of subjects will be discussed epistemology logic basic concepts of pure and applied mathematics philosophical ideas resulting from geometric studies mathematical didactics and finally economics the papers also span a period of more than fifty years what unifies the various parts of the book is the spirit of searching for the elarification of basic concepts and methods and of articulating hidden ideas and tacit procedures part 1 includes papers published about 1930 which expound an idea that carnap after a short period of opposition in the circle fully adopted and under the name principle of tolerance he eloquently formulated it in great generality in his book logica syntax of language 1934 through which it was widely disseminated the new logic in chapter 1 furthermore includes the first report in 1932 to a larger public of godel's epochal discovery presented among the great logic results of all time chapter 2 is a translation of an often quoted 1930 paper presenting a detailed exposition and critique of intuitionism
